milgrim found that the structure of the system/environment could produce obedience that would allow a normal, healthy person to cause harm to another human being (even potential kill them)